

Hello PDF

PDF is a text format!

It technically requires a few things that store binary offsets (xref, startxref, stream /Lengths), but most viewers are happy even if those are missing. So you can just omit them and write a PDF file by hand. Or you can run a program that inserts these elements after the fact.

At least as long you don't want to embed binary data.